Drapeau Appears Here Today, Calls City Hall "Deplorable"

"The state of affairs at City Hall is deplorable". These were the words of mayoralty candidate Jean Drapeau, who will address a general meeting of the Student Body today.

Mr. Drapeau, standard bearer of the newly-formed Civic Party, and former mayor of Montreal, will outline his party's platform and campaign policy for the forthcoming municipal election which is just four days away.

QUESTIONS

Following Mr. Drapeau's address, he will be questioned by a panel of prominent McGill students consisting of Stuart Smith, President of the Students Society, Brahm Campbell, Gold Key Debater, and Dave Angus, Executive Editor of the McGill Daily.

Debating Union President, Irwin Cotler, will chair the meeting. A question-period, during which audience participation will be sought, will conclude today's session.

PARLIAMENTARY SYSTEM

Jean Drapeau and his Civic Party, formed after a breach with the Civic Action League and executive committeeman Pierre Desmarais, are attempting to institute a new concept of Civic Government in Montreal, the concept of a parliamentary system at City Hall.

Furthermore, Mr. Drapeau contends, his Party is the sole group capable of instituting such a system. It is the sole group represented by both a majoralty candidate and a full slate of council candidates in the forthcoming election.

Another plank in the party platform which has caused a great deal of controversy is Mr. Drapeau's contention that the "C" category should be abolished, and that an Executive Committee composed of men of the elected party should be formed after the election. Stated Mr. Drapeau; "there should be no opposition leaders in the Municipal cabinet".

PROGRAMME

In addition to all this, Mr. Drapeau has issued a 16 page programme which, he says, would be implemented during the two-year term which is at stake in this election.

This programme would bring full employment as against unemployment; crime-prevention as against crime waves; responsible tenders as against under-cover deals; and harmonious action as against petty obstructionism."

JEAN DRAPEAU

Jean Drapeau, born on January 18th, 1916, in Rosemount, was only 23 years of age when he made his first venture into politics as an anti-conscriptionist candidate in an Outremont by-election.

MAYOR, 1954

He was defeated as a Bloc Populaire Candidate in the Provincial elections of 1944. He then launched a successful political career in 1954, when he was elected to the office of Mayor by a majority of 50,000 votes.

This meeting featuring Drapeau will be held at 1 pm in the Union Ballroom.

Soldiers, UNB Students Clash; Three Injured

Violent clashes broke out this weekend between University of New Brunswick students and soldiers from Camp Gagetown.

Three people, including the editor of the UNB Student newspaper, were injured seriously enough to require hospital treatment. Several others were arrested.

Although efforts to trace events from beginning to end have proven virtually impossible because of conflicting stories, the trouble is believed to have started last Friday night. At this time a Camp Gagetown soldier, Ronald Pyke, of the third signals squadron, was allegedly stabbed in the face by a UNB student.

INVESTIGATION

After the dust had cleared, investigation by police and army provost corps could not uncover any evidence of UNB students participating in this affair. However, on Saturday night it is reported that Gagetown soldiers came to Fredericton looking for retaliation. Two UNB students ended up in hospital as a result of events of that evening.

Most seriously injured was Gordon M. Howse, editor of the UNB student newspaper, "The Brunswickan". The editor was assaulted when three persons, two believed to be soldiers, entered his boarding house. Fourteen stitches were required to close cuts on Howse's head following the fight.

INJURY

Ronald Samuels, a first year science student at UNB needed two stitches to close a cut after he was allegedly stabbed in the leg. Samuels and two companions, Richard Gregg and Wayne Perry were passing through the old burial grounds in the center of Fredericton when they were attacked by a group of ten men. Samuels told police his attackers were soldiers.

Saturday night also witnessed large crowds of soldiers, students, and town toughs racing back and forth through the streets of the town. Two soldiers, one student, and one civilian were arrested on charges of creating a disturbance through fighting.

PROBE

Brigadier E.C. Brown, N.B. commander, ordered a thorough probe by the Royal Canadian Army Provost Corps into circumstances which caused the fighting.

University of New Brunswick officials and the student disciplinary Council are similarly conducting an investigation to discover exactly how involved students were in the riots.

Estimates of the total numbers of persons involved in the general melee were vague and range from 200 - 700. A great many of the participants, particularly towards the end of the affair were local hoodlums and bully boys urging on soldiers and students.

Presidents' Banquet

Gene Kirby, Montreal radio announcer, will speak on "Getting Along With Press and Radio" at the Presidents' Banquet at the Union tonight. Cocktails will be served in the Clubroom at 7 pm followed by dinner in the cafeteria at 8 pm.

Blood Drive Hits Record

A record 2,814 pints of blood were collected during this year's Blood Drive. The 2,814 figure represents an increase of 27 % over last year's effort.

Based on the 1959 60 figures of student registration, Commerce had the highest percentage of all undergraduate faculties (74 %) and thus they again carry off "Bloody Mary".

Arts and Science, which led the race for five days, suffered a 'let-down' today and settled for second place with 69.9 %. Engineering came third with a 61.5 % contribution.

BLOODY BORIS

In the Bloody Boris competition (between graduate faculties), Physiotherapy donated more than 118% — based on last year's enrolment. Blood Drive officials consider this to be over 80% of this year's registration.

"And", said a Drive spokesman "if we consider that the second year Physio schedule is 36 hours, mostly spent off campus, and that Physio is an all-girls faculty, we can truly appreciate their effort".

Final percentages will be released as soon as the University announces this year's enrolment figures.

FRATS, HAILS

Fourteen men's and two women's fraternities contributed 100 % and to them the Drive Executive extends "sincere congratulations and appreciation".

McLennan Hall defeated R.V. C. by contributing 100% against the latter's 83.9%. Each of these two residences had a better percentage than any of the five competing men's residences.

Wilson Hall retained their plaque by outdoing Douglas Hall 67.7% to 52.5%.

Diocesan College also retained their title in the Theological Residence competition with a 54.5% record against Presbyterian College with 31% and United Theological College with 45.3%.

CLUB AWARD

The Voyageurs Club made an 87.5% contribution to win the interclub award with their closest rival being Newman House at 53.8%. The Math Club came through with 50.5% and CIC had 41.2%.

The total number of pints donated this year is 597 more than was collected last season and even with total enrolment up from 1959, it is estimated that the 2,814 pints represent a twenty percent increase per person.

The Blood Drive collected 880 pints in 1949, its opening year, and in ten years increased its annual take to 2,217. In 1957 the MacDonald College Drive began by receiving 273 pints to add to McGill's total. The McGill Blood Drive Executive intends to work with the MacDonald group, to increase their contribution and thereby up McGill's total to over 3,200 pints, and bring the Birks Trophy back to McGill, where they feel it belongs.

BIG PUSH

The Committee inaugurated many new activities and stunts into their drive this year. Aside from having a better equiped clinic with a larger staff than ever before, they pepped up the campus with a giant publicity campaign including: publicity nurses on campus, small bands playing at noon-hour, raids on the residences, sound truck broadcasts, marches on the Union and a helicopter landing on campus.

At a short reception given last evening, to celebrate the success, Mrs. Johnson of the Red Cross praised the Executive as the best that she ever worked with and mentioned her amazement that they put into effect all their plans and ideas and were not thwarted in their efforts. She extended special praise to Chairman, Sammy Gewurz, whom she declared, was "the best chairman I have ever worked with at any clinic."

Mrs. Johnson added that although the drive fell short of its objective by almost 200 pints, the 1960 clinic was a great success.

The reception ended with a toast to Sammy Gewurz and the distribution of awards of merit to the executive. To Sammy Gewurz, two tickets to the Kon Tiki Room; to the Vice-chairman, Marvin Wexler, an Ogilvy's gift certificate; Vivian Paskal, free pictures by Coronet Studios; and Gord Eberts, an Eaton's gift certificate.

From the Ivory Tower

The Case For A Student Court

by STEPHEN A. SCOTT

Though I may be guilty of lèse-majesté towards the philosopher kings of the SEC, and their Commissioner, Mr. Greenwood, I must nevertheless venture to suggest that the Greenwood Report (prepared, in the great tradition of the Tremblay Report, by one who is a member of the SEC and who must therefore be entirely impartial on issues involving SEC powers) follows the distinguished pattern of the Platonic dialectic : it creates paper tigers in order to destroy them.

For the most part, Mr. Greenwood's reasoning leads to conclusions assumed in his "a priori" premises, and not drawn from any empirical data coming from investigation. In other words, the whole idea of the students' court is to be dismissed on the basis of a few tautologies.

First, Mr. Greenwood objects to the proposed court on the grounds that "such an institution has not been required in the past, and as an artificial body created to solve no particular or urgent problem, it would be likely to atrophy." This argument assumes what is to be proved : that there is no need at present or in the past. Is such an assumption justified? Is the SEC impartial, for instance, in the matter of election to itself?

In last year's elections for the Commerce representative the losing candidate, as a result of personal investigation found proof of corrupt electoral practices. Was he given a vote of thanks by the SEC? He was not; in fact, he was censured. Did the SEC expose the guilty parties? It did not, preferring quietly to hide the whole matter, a fact which makes it quite plain that, had the losing candidate not taken the investigation upon himself, the SEC would not have been compelled to order a new election, and would not have done so on its own initiative.

Next, Mr. Greenwood suggests that the penal powers of the SEC are of a minor nature, not properly comparable to those of a State. Does Mr. Greenwood mean that he thinks there to be a difference of principle merely because the SEC is unable to impose death or imprisonment? He adds that, in any case, the aggrieved student may appeal to the Senate.

This is truly an astounding excuse; does Mr. Greenwood feel it proper that the University shoulder the responsibilities of student government, or that the students wish it to do so? Has the possibility of redress by the University become an excuse for bad student government? Indeed, one would expect angered reaction from a Students' Council which can normally be expected to be noisily sensitive to any encroachment on the sphere of student self-government.

As to the draughting of rules, Mr. Greenwood is not very complimentary to the S.E.C. Draughting rules requires merely good English and some intelligence, as I suspect a good many of the Law professors will agree. Nor is Mr. Greenwood optimistic as to the quality of the judges of the student court; but surely, however politically influenced they may be, they will not be thus influenced nearly to the extent of SEC members sitting in their own cause; and the fear which Mr. Greenwood evinces in this matter obviously suggests that he finds the most nefarious influence at work on those who presently have political power... student representatives who are, after all, little more responsible to the student body than judges, since they are not in a position to stand for re-election on their records.

As to the one-year appointment, this is a palpable paper tiger, because the judges need not be appointed and their term need not be limited to one year. Indeed, in a scheme presented to the SEC — which was one of the events which led to the present enquiry — all the judges were elected, and their terms in some cases were two years.

After assuming that the judges would be appointed — which they need not be — Mr. Greenwood unduly prejudiced the case for appointing judges (puffing up the paper tiger, then tearing it down). "The SEC has been elected to be responsible, to take decisions affecting vital student interests.

To delegate part of this function to an appointed body is simply to abdicate responsibility and to allow persons who have not been elected by students to pronounce on their rights and duties". This constitutes an unreasoned attack on the appointment of judges, not only of student judges, but of judges in general.

Perhaps if Mr. Greenwood had to explain why he thinks that no judges should be appointed, he might change his mind, especially on the basis of U.S. state experience. Of course, Mr. Greenwood's statement on delegating responsibility might merely have been intended to mean that the SEC should not delegate powers which the Constitution delegates to itself. If this be so, the point becomes trivial, because the whole project is proposed as a Constitutional amendment.

Mr. Greenwood is right in saying that the creation of the court would entail division of powers, but, as usual, the question as to the desirability of such a step, which is exactly the important question, is sidestepped.

It should be remembered in this connection that it is not proposed to separate the executive from the legislative powers, but both of these from the judicial power. This indeed is the main issue. At present the Students' Executive Council is also a Legislative and a Judicial Council.

The suggestion that "if and when a certain issue arises which makes it appear that the SEC cannot take an impartial stand ... the SEC can always refer the issue to an ad hoc tribunal with clearly defined powers" assumes that, while the SEC might be partial on the issue, it would not be partial on the question of whether or not it is partial on the issue. Indeed, one issue is the removal of the competenz - competenz from the SEC, that power which lets it decide what its own powers are. Such a power is less dangerous in the hands of the court.

In short, it does not appear from anything reported in the Daily that the question, whether McGill needs a Court in the structure of its student government, has at all been considered in Mr. Greenwood's Report. At least, nothing came through in the Daily report. All we have seen are tautologies defining away the questions to be considered, and it is not difficult to see why this came about.

It would have been necessary, in the course of an investigation of past need of a court, to review the activities of the SEC itself.

This Mr. Greenwood could not be expected to do, — to bring up matters like last year's Commerce Elections to the SEC. He could however have done better on the present usefulness of a court, whereas we seem to have no real findings, no real discussion, at all, merely a process of assuming all along what was to be shown.

Israel's Chance Unique To Aid Asia, Says Eliav

by TOM TAUSKY

"Israel, because of its geographical and historical position, is in a unique position to help the underdeveloped countries of Asia and Africa" the Honourable Pinchas Eliav, Israeli Consul-General in Montreal told a group at the Hillel Foundation yesterday.

Mr. Eliav, a former Israeli delegate to the United Nations, spoke on "Israel and the New States", in one of the "Focus on Israel" series of lectures sponsored by Hillel and the Student Zionist Organization.

Mr. Eliav begin his address by referring to what he called "perhaps the most important problem in the world today: the revolt of non-Western states against the economic and political domination of the West". Mr. Eliav stressed that because of the rapid growth of communications, and the consequent realization of the standards of living in other parts of the world, Africans and Orientals no longer take misery and starvation for granted.

"This has been termed the Revolt of Rising Expectations, and the problem has not been solved by the granting of independence, as this has led to poorer administration and lower standards of living. In some cases the gap has been widening, rather than narrowing".

Israel is uniquely capable of helping Afro-Asia because of five factors Mr. Eliav declared. Israel's position of being a small country with little capital, beset by heavy odds, as well as the fact that she has no imperialistic ambitions has tented to ally Afro-Asian suspicions. She has succeeded in combining social progress and human freedom, with a minimum of capitalism, which is distrusted by new nations. The fact that she is not as advanced as Western countries also provides a basis of sympathy.

SPECIFIC SKILLS

Mr. Eliav pointed out that Israel has had to develop specific skills which are also important to the emerging states. Agricultural co-operatives and irrigation projects developed by Israeli planners are being copied in countries with similar problems and a small population.

"The example of Israel's army which combines both civilian and military duties is of particular interest to Afro-Asia" Mr. Eliav continued.

"Israel's motives in helping Afro-Asia are threefold" Mr. Eliav said. "She has a wish to be integrated in the Asian world of which she was historically a part, she needs as many friends as possible in view of the hostility of the Arabs, and feels that she can make a unique contribution.

DH Lawrence Analyzed At SCM Noon Seminar

"D. H. Lawrence and the New Ethic" was the subject under discussion at a noon-hour seminar held yesterday at SCM House. A small group of students met under the leadership of Rev. Frank Thompson.

Lawrence was chosen as the central figure of the discussions because his writings are a typical expression of a modern idea of human behavior, not because the ethic which he expounds is in reality a "new" one. His books are an analysis of modern life and behavior, and as such certain passages will be discussed in detail, in order to determine exactly what his ethic was.

MODERN CODE

His characters express a modern code — rejecting anything even vaguely supernatural, such as religion, and exhibiting complete naturalism in their personal relations.

Rev. Thompson, who leads the discussions, has been a member of the SCM since his undergraduate days, and is now taking post graduate studies at McGill. As a minister in the Anglican Church, he will, of course, support the Christian ethic, although his aim is not conversion of the students, and he hopes for some staunch agnostics to support the opposite viewpoint.

Players Club Auditioning Sagging, Actors Needed

Casting for the Players' Club's main production, "Under Milk Wood" has so far been relatively slow.

There is still room for anybody interested in participating, said a spokesman yesterday. The production requires a cast of approximately 25. Auditions continue today from 1-2 pm, 7-9 pm and 7-9 pm tomorrow, at the Walter Stewart Room. All interested are urged to audition.

HILARIOUS

"It would be hard for any work of art to communicate more directly, amusingly and lovingly what it is like to be alive." Under Milk Wood, the fall production of the Players Club is a "moving and hilarious" account of a Spring day in a small town by the sea. We meet the villagers, from Polly Garter, lady of the town, acidly referred to by Mrs. Pugh as a saint who "was martyred again last night", to Bessie Bighead, who was "kissed once by the pig-sty when she wasn't looking and never kissed again although she was looking all the time".

BAKER DIRECTS

Stuart Baker, who is directing this years production is an editor and assistant director for the National Film Board, and co-founder of the Totem Theatre in Vancouver. He has directed the "Bald Soprano" for the Players Club and "The Desperate Hours" for Trinity Players.

CHALLENGE

The men and women of the Daily News Department and their affiliates hereby officially challenge the ladies and gentlemen of the sports department to engage against them in a game of touch football to take place any where, any time and on any day that Les Sports desire. We wish to remind all fans that the final score of last year's game was: News 28, Sports 7.

Sports Editor

A determined hard fighting group of athletes have finally dispelled the jinx which has hung over their heads like the sword of Damocles. The McGill Redmen have won a football game. The possibility of winning their next game here on Saturday against last week's victim Toronto seems to be an extremely good one. For one thing, the Redmen have proven that they can win a game. For another there were no serious injuries in last week's encounter.

DEFENCE TIGHTENS UP

Coach Coulter has been drilling his charges all week and has concentrated on pass defense, one of the places where the Redmen were weak. Despite key defense plays by the line, Toronto still managed to run successfully off tackle, especially during the second half ; most of the damage along the ground was between the 30 yard lines. McGill must tighten up their defensive play in order to thwart the potent passing of Turner and the powerful ground play of Varsity.

But the psychological lift given to the Red and White squad by their victory should do much to overcome the cloud of defeat which overhung the team. The return of Rae Brown to the practice scrimmiges also enhances the chances of the Redmen as they enter the last half of the schedule. Brown, an All-Star when he last played two years ago, broke his ankle in scrimmage just before the start of the regular season play. Unfortunately Brown will not be in shape to start on Saturday, but his enthusiasm has been a boost to all. Leo Konyk is still on the sidelines with torn knee cartilages and will probably not start on Saturday. His replacement, John Cleghorn, is filling the slot admirably.

GIANT PEP RALLY

A giant pep rally has been planned by the S.A.C. to take place this Friday evening at 8:45 pm on the Lower Campus. The Redmen Band, along with the cheerleaders and cheerleaderettes will be present. The M.C. for the evening is personable Dick Currie. A host of other entertainment has been planned so come down and have a ball. One of the highlights will be the introduction of the Redmen and their coaches.

McGill's Chances Rated High For Wrestling Crown

Coach Allan Turnbull is optimistic about McGill's chances this year of winning the Intercollegiate Wrestling Championships to be held in London, Ontario. The Coach who is a former British Empire Games Coach for Canada, and present head coach of Central and International Y's as well as McGill's feels "that with the wrestling programme now being carried on in many high schools, as well as the local clubs, a farm system for McGill has been developed. The early start these youngsters have gotten will give them a better chance against their American counterparts..

This, coupled with last year's nucleus, should give us a strong team. Returning this year to the team will be two 1960 Provincial Champs; John McClellan Jr., an American import from Connecticut and Morden "Cookie" Lazarus, a local boy. Both did well at the Canadian Championships last year. I would like to extend an invitation to all those who are interested that practices will be held every Tuesday and Thursday in the BWF, room at 5 pm."

WATER POLO

There will be a water polo game tonight at 6:30 in the Currie pool. McGill's intercollegiate squad will oppose a hand picked team. This is your chance to see the intercollegiate champions in action. Come down and support your team.

Rugger Squad Blanked 12-0 By TMR Team

by JOEL D. LERMER

The senior Redmen rugger squad suffered a crashing 12-0 defeat at the hand of the yet unbeaten Town of Mount Royal team at Molson Stadium. All four touchdowns were scored by third quarter movements, which shows that the weakness lay in the backs.

Redmen tackles Taitt and Souter were prominent in keeping the Mount Royal score down to 12.

Both teams showed tremendous fight combined with excellent co-ordination between the forwards and backs. The game was fast and hard and afforded great excitement to the 50 or so people who bothered to turn out. Encouraging shrieks from Andrews (Scrum leader) and Murchison (Captain) throughout the game helped boost the morale of the Redmen who were badly in need of something to cheer them up.

Coach Covo was confident of a win before the game, and is still convinced that his team is a top-notch one.

No team has ever played a good game without moral support, so come-on folks, turn out and cheer on the McGill Redmen team at the next game.
